Administration and Educational General

Co-Convener, Bellah Legacy Group (2022- present)

A group of 15 scholars inspired by sociologist Robert N. Bellah organized to sponsor activities to sustain and build on his legacy such as the annual Lectureship at the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley, "The Robert N. Bellah Lectureship on Religion and Public Life."

Member, Curriculum Task Force, Dominican University (2013-2014),

Contributed to efforts to radically revise the curriculum in the spirit of the meaning of the "Dominican Experience," as part of the University-wide planning process. Helped to implement a "pilot course" that would manifest the guiding principles of curricular change: "Community-Based Participatory Research."

Chair, Responsibility Center Management Task Force, Dominican University
(2010-2012)

Helped the Chief Academic Officer and members of the Board of Trustees to create a more decentralized management system to foster greater innovation and accountability as part of strategic planning. A main feature of the initiative included a budgeting approach that is more transparent. Began a process for a revised shared governance structure within the context of a culture shift for the University that put more authority in the hands of those responsible for their program outcomes.

Member, Search Committee for New President (2010-2011)

One of two faculty representatives on the Committee serving with ten Trustees. Concluded search with a Unanimous vote.

Department Chair, Humanities Department, Dominican University of California (2001-2011) Department includes an MA in Humanities and the following undergraduate programs: Art History, History, Humanities, Latin American Studies, Music, Philosophy, Religion, Social and Cultural Studies and Women and Gender Studies; BFA, Dance (LINES Ballet).

Responsibilities: Supervision of eight full-time faculty and thirty part-time faculty. Coordinate curriculum development, scheduling and planning for all programs. Develop and manage budgets for all programs.

Principal; Stelmach Associates, consultant for county/city governments, community organizations, religious groups and health systems (1989-2001; concurrent with other positions)

Responsibilities: Design and facilitate processes that focus on value-based budgeting, strategic planning, visioning and specialized seminars and conferences on social policy and ethics.

Core Faculty; St. Mary's College, School of Extended Education (part-time, 1999-2001)

Responsibilities: Assisting the Critical Perspectives Department ("great books" program) in developing departmental priorities, conducting peer faculty reviews, representing the School on college-wide curriculum development project (Masters in Leadership and Applied Ethics) and the governance board of the college-wide great books program.

Consultant; World Council of Churches, Unit I: Unity and Renewal, The Program on Lay Participation Towards Inclusive Community and Unit III: Justice, Peace and Creation (Summer Sabbatical 1995)

Responsibilities: Edited conference proceeding on a four-unit collaboration, "Education for Empowerment: Education for Citizenship"; conducted research on "The Laos: The Whole People of God"; and assisted in conference planning on theology and civil society.

President/CEO; Vesper Society (1992-1996)

Responsibilities: Total management and establishment of a new direction for a 30-year-old NGO with a 5-million-dollar annual budget and a 20-million-dollar endowment. Led organization from a health and social service agency to an international social justice and educational organization. Restructured the board of governance; spun off four subsidiaries to independent organizations; restructured staff; provided overall direction for fund development, from major gift campaign to foundation grants; and defined strategic direction toward "building healthy communities in a global civil society" with a special emphasis on the contributions of national and international lay church organizations.

Co-Founder/Board Member; Center for the Common Good (1992-2000)

Responsibilities: Designed concept, mobilized support, secured funding, recruited staff, served as Chair of the Board in the creation of an independent organization. Worked with main organizing and funding partner, The California Council for the Humanities.

Director/President; Vesper International (1989-1992)

Responsibilities: Designed, secured funding and managed international conferences on such topics as: business ethics; public policy advocacy in the churches; the common good and civil society; the environment; religion and civil society; the peace process in Central America. These conferences were sponsored with international partners in Latin America and Europe.

Associate Dean; Graduate Theological Union (1988-1989)

Responsibilities: Academic and administrative oversight for centers and affiliate institutes (which included: Center for Jewish Studies, Orthodox Institute, Institute of Buddhist Studies, Center for Women and Religion and six others). Co-directed an institution-wide strategic planning process for the President and Board. (Concurrent with Directorship of the Center for Ethics and Social Policy).

Founder; Bay Area Ethics Consortium (1986-1989)

Responsibilities: Organized from original concept to the funding and recruitment of partners and the operating of a new organization. Partners were from five San Francisco Bay Area schools of business (Stanford Univ.; Univ. of Calif.; St. Mary's College; San Jose State; and Santa Clara Univ.) with professors from the Graduate Theological Union, leaders of labor unions, executives from business, religious leaders and grassroots organizers. Solicited over a quarter of million dollars of gifts to meet a matching grant from the Haas Fund to establish the Consortium. (Concurrent with the Directorship of the Center for Ethics and Social Policy).

Faculty Coordinator; Advanced Management Program (Summers 1986 and 1987)

Responsibilities: Developed curriculum, recruited and developed faculty and led worship for an intensive 8-week management and leadership program for executives of religious organizations. Courses included strategic planning, human resources, finance, organizational development, ethics, and fund development. (Concurrent with Directorship of Center for Ethics and Social Policy).

Executive Director; Center for Ethics and Social Policy / GTU (1983-1989)

Responsibilities: Overall management of the Center including conceptualization of projects, fund-raising, budgets and coordination of all special events, seminars and conferences. Established a full-scale development office for the first time at the Center, which raised over $100,000 a year in gifts and grants.

Director, General Education Division; University of San Francisco (1977-83)

Responsibilities: Implementation of the University's general education requirements in the College of Professional Studies through the academic leadership and management of the Philosophy, Writing, TV-Assisted Learning, Internship and Experiential Learning Programs. Students were all adult learners in over 100 different locations throughout the state of California. Recruited and trained faculty and developed standardized curricula.

Founded the Albany-Berkeley Girls Softball League, Albany and Berkeley, California, (1983-1991) Conceptualized, organized and managed the origin of the League which is vibrant today (www.abgls.org). Beginning with a foundation of only a dozen girls playing organized softball or baseball in the two towns, the League grew from ten teams and about 120 girls, and one competitive traveling team (which I coached) to almost thirty teams and over 300 girls and several traveling teams. Founded the league on philosophical principles of healthy competition that included player rotation rules to insure all girls would play the skilled positions. Also evolved rules for adult behavior, which put focus on ethical development for the adults as crucial to a healthy environment for the youth. These innovations have been recognized in the media and often became the model for other youth programs.
